

ELECTRIC AND WATER PLANTS MUST BE ENLARGED AT ONCE

Engineer Places Report Before Council Showing That Both Are Already Taxed Beyond Proper Capacity

Two reports placed before the city council last night by the city engineer indicate that the city has reached the point where the population has overtaken the water and light services and something on a much larger scale than anything heretofore contemplated must be undertaken at once if the city is to avoid a water famine next year, with its attendant working of devastation by fire. And if the electric light plant is to meet the demands it will be made upon it within the next year, even excluding from the consideration the demands that will be made upon the plant for power for the street railway, not a day is to be lost in placing orders for new plant. In fact as the report indicates, the city is going to be short of light for a couple of months next year, any way, and the rate of increase in the applications for light services is so rapid that the demand will overtake the supply before the new plant can be installed. The amount of light used has doubled within the past year and there is every reason to believe that it will more than double again within the next year. The plant is already taxed to the limit, Saturday night.

On the 1st of January the city's contract with Strathcona will run out, after which the city will have a surplus of power for a few months, but the respite will be only brief.

On the water proposition, the city has long since passed the safe point where the pumping system is duplicated. Since the large pump break down at any time the small pump could not supply the city and situation, in case of fire, would be dangerous. If not disastrous. To help tide over this contingency until such time as the city may install the new plant, the council last night authorized the commissioners to make arrangements with Strathcona to connect by a pipe line laid under the river the Edmonton system with the pumping station across the river. The arrangement, of course, would be reciprocal, each town helping to protect the other. The cost would be $8,000.

The reports of the engineer were favourably considered and referred back to the committee. He is to furnish the council with specifications of the power plant required and all the particulars regarding the proposed water plant, such as length of main, levels, pressure at different points, etc. The location of the new water works, as proposed by the city engineer, is almost due south of 21st street, in the south west corner of the south east quarter of sec. 26, range 25, township 52, and calls for two 16-inch mains one and one half miles long. The following are the reports in full:

The following report is intended to show the present capacity and condition of the Electric Light Station and also the necessity for extending the same in the near future.

The plant has a capacity of 675 K.W. in two units of 400 and 275 K.W. each. There is at present a maximum load of 500 K.W. which is more than the load for either machines separately and if either machine experiences a break down the other will be run on reduced power.

The plant consists of a total of 1200 horse power, of which 800 horse power is not yet in operation. Three boilers have to supply power for the combined water pumping and electric light plants and although the boiler plant exists in horse power the rated power of the electric light plant pumping system is 1000 K.W. and it is assumed that it should be in order that there may be a spare boiler to allow for cleaning without menacing the operation plant.

THE STACK:

The stack has a capacity of 375 h.p. and as it is at present required to be run at 100% of its capacity it has been necessary to supplement it with a mechanical blower, which will enable the plant to get through this winter without any great inconvenience.

From the above it will be seen that in order to be ready for next winter there must be an extension to the plant.

It might be said that the additions had been ready for this present winter, but do not, however, consider that it was necessary as there is a certain allowable risk that must be assumed with regard to water supply. The gravity system, however, is not applicable to Edmonton on account of the unevenness of the land surface and on account of the great distance to which the river must be pumped to obtain a head to give a domestic pressure of 70 lbs per square inch at city level, and a gravity supply of less pressure than this should not be considered. The river would have to be tapped at a point where the surface was at least 600 feet higher than it is opposite the city.

The gravity system, when procured by elevated tanks and stand pipes, is expensive and unsatisfactory and not applicable to large cities. Therefore it is by far the most desirable where natural conditions will admit of its adoption, the city having a natural elevation on one location for a reservoir, has a very great advantage with regard to water supply. The gravity system, however, is not applicable to Edmonton on account of the unevenness of the land surface and on account of the great distance to which the river must be pumped to obtain a head to give a domestic pressure of 70 lbs per square inch at city level, and a gravity supply of less pressure than this should not be considered. The river would have to be tapped at a point where the surface was at least 600 feet higher than it is opposite the city.

The advantage of assuming this additional risk, this year especially, will be great. Since June two very important features are being presented namely: The Electric Street Railway and possibly an electrical pumping plant. The two conditions will influence to a large extent the magnitude of the proposed extension.

The following detailed list includes the extensions and changes which I would suggest for the coming year and which will serve to increase the guarantees of light and power to an extent which is necessary where a large population depends on the continued operation of the system.

ENGINE AND ALTERNATOR:

The machinery should be either an engine direct connected to an alternator, such as we have at the present or a turbine driven alternator. The capacity of the alternator should be at least 900 K.W. to generate the power required for this capacity. The engine or turbine horse power can be found by allowing 11-3 horse per K.W., thus a 900 K.W. machine would require a 1200 horse power engine or turbine.

The alternator should be 60 cycle, 3 phase, 240 volts. Such a machine would work in proper synchronism with our present machines.

THE WATERWORKS REPORT

Although this report has to do particularly with the water supply to Edmonton, it is necessary, in order that the questions arising may be intelligible to the board, that the present system should be explained.

The pumping of the water for the city is at present performed in two stages: first the raising of the water from the river to ground level, a head of 50 ft.; second, the delivery of the water from the power house to the city level under domestic or fire pressure as the case may be. This necessitates two sets of pumping machinery, namely, the deep well pumping machinery, and the pressure pumping machinery.

The deep well pumps are placed in wells which are sunk below the low water level of the river, and which are connected with the river by a 12 inch in-take pipe which is laid in a tunnel. The water stands in the wells at river level at all times of the year. The deep well pumps and in-take have a maximum capacity of 2000 imperial gallons per minute.

VIEWS OF THE TARIFF.

Toronto, Nov. 30.—The Globe will say editorially tomorrow of the new tariff. Purpose of intermediate tariff is to place in the hands of the government a powerful means of negotiating with friendly nations disposed to accord to Canada their minimum tariff. There will be general gratification that the market preference to the Mother Country has been continued, and in some points strengthened. It is there that the great bulk of our agricultural products are marketed and it is a well recognized economic fact that there is no better way to facilitate exports than by facilitating imports. Liberal rates, therefore placed on commodities of British origin will make it easier to market our cheese, butter, bacon, grain and cattle in that great British market that seems to have so great capacity for assimilating such commodities. We are entitled to look also for similar benefits from the intermediate tariff, which appears for the first time in our customs schedules. If it leads to mutual understandings between us and foreign countries it will provide additional markets for our rapidly expanding products.

Toronto, Nov. 30.—Concerning the tariff, it is quite satisfactory so far as dry goods are concerned," said J. W. Woods, of the firm of Gordon MacKay & Co. "There is a big change in linens, 25 per cent. straight instead of 16 2/3 from Britain, but the principle of encouraging manufacture by admitting the coarse yarns free of duty is worked upon. Manufacturers do not have to go to the raw flax. They can import the coarse yarns and in that way escape the intricate primary processes. Under such circumstances it is difficult for Canadian factories to treat the raw product but if they are allowed to import the partly manufactured article they can complete its manufacture here. Such a policy would build up Canada as a manufacturing nation."

A. L. Smith, of the Weekly Sun, said, "Farmers feared an increase in the tariff when the subject was first discussed, but as far as I am able to see there has been no material increase in anything the farmer has to buy. On the other hand there is a reduction on some important lines."

Mr. J. D. Allan, of A. A. Allan & Co., objects to the regulation providing that the British preference will only be extended to imported goods upon which there is a bane of 25 per cent. of British labor, especially of profits.

H. P. Eckardt: "I don't think there will be any change in the price of sugar. The market has been pretty firm for some time. There is an increase of about seven cents a hundred on raw material. The refined article is the same as before. The increase on raw material is scarcely large enough to result in price increase."

FIRE PRESSURE:

On account of the principles governing the operation of turbine pumps, an auxiliary, one-stage pump would have to be installed in order to raise the pressure the amount by which fire pressure exceeds the domestic pressure. Thus when a fire occurs, the pressure in the auxiliary pump is started which will raise the pressure to the required amount. This auxiliary pump is called a "booster." This method of getting fire pressure would serve the needs of the city until some six story buildings were to be protected, at which time, no doubt, Edmonton will require a high pressure pump to maintain a pressure of possibly 300 lbs. per square inch.

By way of suggestion this report would suggest that the high pressure main could be supplied by having booster sets in duplicate installed in connection with the fire system.

These boosters would take the water from the domestic service line and deliver it to the high pressure fire mains at 300 lbs. pressure if necessary. The advantages of this system would be that a high pressure fire service could be installed at a comparatively low cost and easily.

The main advantage would be relieved of having a fire pressure imposed on them. The high pressure fire service is now becoming a feature of many cities, especially the progressive ones, and its advantages are undoubted.

STATIONS:

These stations should be substantially built and of sufficient size to accommodate an ultimate pumping capacity of 30,000,000 gallons per day and be laid out so that extensions can be made without disturbing existing work. It should be based mostly of steel, dug deep into the water table from river level to city pressure at one stage of our present pumping station which would be a great advantage.

TRANSMISSION LINE:

The transmission line from the central station to the pumping plant should be of modern construction and possibly duplicate so that accidents will rarely, if ever, happen.

The motors which will be installed will depend, to some extent, on the street railway development, because the energy required for the street railway might be of such a nature that the pumping requirements could be used to an advantage for producing current for the pumping motors.

The character of the river bank at the proposed site of the new station make's a system of water purifying in filtration a comparatively simple matter. Filter beds could be constructed in the river banks and forming an artificial bed which would give perfect sand filtration, without the difficulty of cleaning the beds as the flow of the river carries the filter from the sanding stage.

The cost of the above installation is as follows, after making a liberal allowance for the usual difficulties which cannot be foreseen:

2,000,000 gallon	turbo pump with auxiliaries	... $22,000.00
2,000,000 gallon	turbo pump with auxiliaries	... 9,000.00
Station excavation and intake, including filter	... 10,000.00
Duplicating 16 inch pipe	... 70,000.00
Total	... 30,000.00

The above prices are liberal approximations which are in any case only in which there is any uncertainty the other figures however, are perfectly safe.

BOILERS—

600 H.P. of additional boilers should be purchased in order that there may be a sufficient surplus to handle the steam from the unit when working at 25 per cent. over load.

These boilers should be fitted with mechanical stokers and super-heaters, and if a turbine is purchased should be capable of carrying a working pressure of 2 1/2 lbs per square inch.

CONDENSER AND AIR PUMP—

The condenser and air pump must have a sufficient capacity to handle the steam from the unit when working at 25 per cent. over load. This condenser and air pump will belong particularly to this engine or turbine but the remainder of the plant will also be attached to it.

STACK—

A stack will have to be built having a capacity with natural and induced draft of 2500 H.P.

TRANSMISSION LINE—

In the estimate it will be necessary to make provision for increasing the capacity of the transmission lines.

BOILER HOUSE ROOF—

The boiler house roof will have to be constructed of wood, the wood having become warped and brittle with the action of the heat, and when this is being done the question of elevated coal bins with coal conveyors could be considered, the roof trusses and stack might be reinforced and possibly to coal bins as well.

night before Magistrate Tipton and each was fined $5 and costs.

WITH THE CITY COUNCIL.—
The city council last night refused the applications of the Edmonton Lumber Works Co. and the Alberta Milling Co. for a rebate on their taxes on the ground that they were being assessed much higher than some other manufacturers, especially the lumbermen.

The commissioners came in for a sitting from the council for having made the reduction too great for the lumbermen. Alderman Griesbach said that their action in setting out a line for the city was highly improper, if not illegal, and Alderman Hallam said that the whole thing looked very similar to him.

Two by-laws were brought in last night, the first for the establishment of a Health department with a medical health officer employed solely by the city, and the second for the extension of the fire limits. Both were debated at considerable length and finally laid over to be taken up by the new council.

Under the head of communications a letter was read from Mr. E. C. Baker, manager of the Edmonton branch of the Dominion Bank asking for a rebate of $26.75 of the business tax on the bank as the branch had only been in business since July. The application was granted.

The secretary of the union of Alberta Municipalities wrote pointing out that the annual meeting of the union will be held at Del Rey on Tuesday, January 8.

THE REVISED TARIFF.

The revised tariff schedules were presented to the House of Commons Thursday and from the summary contained in the despatches it is apparent that the Manufacturers' Association have signally failed to stampede the government into the tariff elevation they have persistently demanded for several years past.

That there is a revision of the tariff at this time is to be credited very largely to the insistent demands of these gentlemen for such tariff adjustment as would throw the trade of Canada absolutely and inevitably into their hands, regardless of what they might be pleased to tax the people of the country in the form of increased prices for the privilege of buying only Canadian made goods.

The preferential duty which was established by the tariff revision of 1897 granted a reduction to goods made in Great Britain. This the manufacturers were pleased to construe as an invasion of their domain and the circumstance that the invasion came from Great Britain made no conspicuous difference in the attitude of the Canadian manufacturers toward it. It has been to them an object of peculiar aversion and about it has centred their heaviest onslaughts on the tariff policy of the Government.

It is noteworthy that the British preference is to remain. The form is changed but the substance is unaltered. Instead of a flat discount of 33 1/3 per cent. on goods of all classes manufactured in Great Britain and the sister colonies which tender us tariff favors the different classes of goods will be treated individually. Great Britain and the colonies favorably disposed toward our trade will continue therefore to receive the benefit of the privilege of shipping their goods into this country at a lower rate than is accorded to countries outside the Empire and to any portions of the Empire itself who do not manifest a desire to trade with us. In maintaining such condition the Government has given an unequivocal answer to the demands of the Canadian manufacturer that every possible competitor be debarred from the Canadian market and also to the Opposition who have devoted their labors to the same end under the thin guise of a glittering profession of "preserving the Canadian market for the Canadian manufacturer."

Scarcey more satisfactory to the advocates of an exclusive tariff, but quite as satisfactory to the country at large will be the intermediate tariff by which a preference may be extended to any country which shows a disposition to develop trade with Canada. This is the spirit of reciprocity. By it Canada practically offers to do in tariff matters to others as they are prepared to do to us. It is a recognition of the principle that high tariff is destructive of international commerce and also of the principle that a large international trade is a desirable thing for Canada. It is an offer to meet other nations half-way in a mutually beneficial arrangement. It paves the way for future reductions of the tariff toward all countries which produce goods they would like to sell in Canada, provided such countries reduce their tariff restrictions against the admission of Canadian goods. And as the country possessing such arrangement will have a distinct advantage over the country which does not possess it the effect of this provision should be to induce a reduction of tariff on the part of those nations which now display a willingness to sell goods in Canada, but an objection to buying goods from us.

The intermediate tariff offers the opportunity therefore of a gradual all-round lowering of the tariff restrictions on trade between Canada and other countries of the world by the medium of tariff arrangements and commercial treaties. But that the tariff revision is not designed in a spirit of hostility or indifference to Canadian industries is evidenced by the fact that the general tariff remains except where and until it is replaced by the intermediate tariff brought into play by arrangements with other countries. While provision is thus made for gradually lightening the burden which protection has placed on the consumers of Canada, there is no violent and sudden abolition of the conditions under which Canadian industries have been originated and developed, such as might tend to create an industrial panic or disrupt the commercial life of the country. Instead there is given to the manufacturer an understanding of the conditions which by tariff arrangement he is likely to have to face in the future and for which he will have time to prepare himself. While therefore the general tariff is operative for the present it is liable to automatic alteration by the simple fact of the completion of tariff arrangements with other countries and the knowledge that it is thus liable to alteration should have an immediate effect in tempering the unsatisfactory results of protection.

HON. W. H. CUSHING BEREAVED
Calgary Declared—

The sad illness of Miss Louise Cushing terminated in death about four o'clock yesterday afternoon. She died peacefully and apparently without pain. Those around the deceased were her father, Hon. W. H. Cushing, Mrs. Cushing, her sister Mrs. F. F. Higgs and her comrades, Miss Grace Cameron.

The news of Miss Cushing's death was a severe shock to her friends especially as to most of them it was unexpected. Two months ago she underwent an operation for a sudden attack of what was diagnosed as appendicitis which seized her in Victoria, B.C. where she was spending a holiday with Miss Cameron and her family. To this she had been able to return the operation she was brought home and although sometimes she seemed stronger and brighter the fact that she could not take sufficient nourishment caused her to grow gradually weaker, her disease was variously diagnosed as stomach trouble, other forms of appendicitis, peritonitis and adhesions resulting from the operation in Victoria. Finally after a consultation of physicians a second operation was decided on and she was removed to the General Hospital Wednesday morning for that purpose. Her strength had been so reduced however that she sank slowly until she died.

Miss Cushing was one of the best known young ladies in the city where she had resided since childhood. Her generous disposition and unselfish consideration for her friends won her popularity everywhere. Her musical gifts caused her to be much sought after at various gatherings and while she was always a favorite and her gentle hospitality at the frequent little functions she gave for her friends made her a centre of attraction. It is no common place to say that her loss will be deeply felt in many circles while in her own family it is inexpressible. Keen sympathy is expressed on all sides over the bereaved parents. The choir of the central Methodist church last night passed a touching resolution of condolence which will be forwarded to the stricken family with a suitable floral offering. Miss Cushing was for considerable time organist in the choir. It is probable the funeral will take place on Monday.

RE THE RISING OF THE CURTAIN

Ladies and Gentlemen:

The curtain will rise on Monday December 3rd. Watch this page. It will be to your advantage to watch the curtain rise. Behind the curtain lie four words which mean prosperity and abundance.

We represent European capital and capitalists at the Pacific Coast. We want to buy good property for them and for ourselves in the city and in the country. We believe there is room in Edmonton for a live Real Estate firm.

With the reorganization of our office our real estate department enters into a wider sphere of activity. For this reason we want you on our list.

But, we want good property, and good property only; property we may buy ourselves, property we can sell for you.

The Country of the Upper Peace

(Written for the Bulletin by W. H. Foster)

Dunvegan is one of the oldest posts in the North. It was famous in the old York factory days and even up to within a few years, it was the headquarters of the Hudson's Bay Company for the Peace River district. The big warehouse and stores are still standing, with the door between and behind is the trim cottage of the factor surrounded by maple trees and sunflowers. At present Dunvegan is the loneliest post in the North. The total population are two white men and a half breed, and an occasional camp of Sioux Indians. The site of the settlement has been drained by the flooding communities to the south, Spirit River and Grande Prairie. But Dunvegan may have a greater future than ever before. Duncan Macdonald believes so, (he is the second white man) and he is prepared to wait years for it if need be. As I mentioned in a previous article, Dunvegan is the natural place, and practically the only place for a railway to cross the Peace River, with the trail route the a charter for the railway from Edmonton and northward is to be applied for at the next session of the Alberta legislature. So Duncan Macdonald may be right after all.

At Dunvegan the trail crosses the Peace River again and continues due south for fifteen miles to Spirit River where there are about two white settlers. There is a ranching community. Small crops are raised but there are no implements in the country but ploughs and harrows and a curious little threshing machine which was brought from France by the priests somewhere in the dim past and is known locally as the "man-killer". There is a beautiful little prairie comprising perhaps a hundred acres comprising part of the future town of Spirit River. The soil is excellent and will grow practically anything. The trouble is that it costs seven dollars a hundred to bring in freight from Edmonton. The leading white settler at Spirit River is Charles Bremner, who has been in the country for twenty-two years. He owns a hundred and fifty acres of land. He is a heavy, short man and a half cent the pound by carcass. There have been two first class seasons and the trappers have averaged a thousand dollars each in a winter. In consequence, there is a ready sale for flashy jewelry, perfume, loud silk handkerchiefs, and other luxuries and these are a continual demand and always in great supply during the winter.

The whole of this part of the country is made up of alternating patches of bush and prairie country. To the east of the Spirit River is Grizzly Bear prairie, to the south is Grand Prairie which contains nearly a thousand miles of bush. To the west is the Pouce Coupe, Red Willow and Beaver Lodge prairies. This is the country of the chinook wind and mild open winters. It has been my intention to cross Grizzly Bear prairie, but on the way up I heard so much of the romantic reputation of Pouce Coupe (Pooch Coopay) that I determined to see it at all costs. The country was growing late and there was not time to do both, so I was compelled to depend upon hearsay for my information about Grande Prairie.

This big stretch of country lies about fifteen miles south of Spirit River. It is roughly speaking about sixty miles square. Opinions differ widely as to the value of the land. The truth of the matter is that much poor land and much good land as well may be found in this big tract. Out in the middle of the prairie it has been repeatedly burned over and the land is full of great cracks. The soil is principally gumbo. Around the edges of the prairies, though, is to be found some of the finest land in the country, especially in the vicinity of Kleskun lake to the east, which is spoken of with the greatest enthusiasm by all who have seen it. There are half a dozen or more white settlers at Grizzly Bear prairie, each of which has a small bunch of cattle. Nothing is grown there except a few oats and potatoes, on account of the lack of irrigation.

Pouce Coupe prairie enjoys a great reputation among the half breeds and Indians. They say snow never lies on the ground there which is no doubt an exaggeration, but the fact remains that the warm winds blow the snow off the Pine Pass all winter, and this little part of the country enjoys exceptionally mild winters. Moreover, it is a great berry country, the Indians can depend on getting a profusion of fruit there when the crop has been ruined by late frost elsewhere. The natives winter their ponies on Pouce Coupe prairie and finally it is known as a very paradise of game, large and small. This latter count I can substantiate for I saw

Great difficulties faced us in reaching Pouce Coupe prairie from Spirit River. The intervening seventy miles is covered with big timber through which a fire had swept earlier in the summer effectively blocking the trail. At the best it was only a faint track hacked by trail exceedingly hard for a team to follow. The two men I had come up from the Crossing with wanted to use Pouce Coupe too, so we joined forces and engaged a guide who resided in the name of Michel Testo.

The buckboard of course, had to be left at Spirit River. One of the horses we rode and the other was introduced to the saddle for the first time in his life. Michel supplied another pack horse and the three additional saddle horses we required.

Throughout that ten days' trip the horses were a never-failing source of amusement. The experienced pack ponies possessed almost human intelligence. It was wonderful to see them look all around them and the one who was unbroken by the tandem, on the other hand, was all at sea in the bush. He would start off through the bush with his great swinging trot, forgetting all about his pack. First it would hit something on the side and see him staggering across until he was brought up all standing on the other side. Then the force of the impact would turn him around, partly around and the poor horse would stand in the middle of the trail wondering what had struck him. It was my part to bring up the rear and keep the pack horses moving. They were all alike in one respect and that was in their anxiety to get next to me and my long mated. Whenever we came to an open space in the bush there would be a race-for-all sprint between the three horses to see which could get ahead and so out of the reach of the switch and the rear horse was continually making wide deflections through the bush to try to get ahead of the others.

The last white man we tried to travel over this trail was the Earl of Calthness, that intrepid old traveller. He found the fire still raging and was compelled to turn back. When we came to the track of the flames a wild scene of desolation presented itself. Enormous portions of the great spruce had burned through at the roots and brought crashing to earth. They were piled in every direction. It was quite impossible for us to get through and Michel made a long detour through the trackless forests and brought us out safely on another trail to go south.

The Michel was the best man I ever saw around a camp. There is a pot or work connected with a pack train.

Twice a day at the noon spell and the night camp, everything had to be unloaded and the horses turned out and twice a day, camp had to be struck, the horses caught, the packs adjusted, the trail made and the bush cleared of the bush at night.

Michel declined to ride back to join our friends though it was bright moon-light. We spent the night in the tepee of Pierre Toma, the greatest moose hunter in the district. Here we were treated to another supper, about an hour after the first, of moose tongue and moose liver. We had not had a good meal since we left. Pierre himself ate an entire wash-basin full of the savory mixture, entertaining us between mouthfuls with the story of the day's hunt. Although I could not understand his language I could follow the story very well from his graphic gestures. They tell these endless stories with the most amazing detail. They are great story tellers. Pierre himself ate an entire wash-basin full of the savory mixture, entertaining us between mouthfuls with the story of the day's hunt. Although I could not understand his language I could follow the story very well from his graphic gestures. They tell these endless stories with the most amazing detail. They are great story tellers.

There was another great fire, fully eighteen feet long built down the centre of Pierre's tepee with a great rack of moose meat above it. We all laid down in a row with our feet towards it, first the seven small children then the mother and father, then Michel and myself. The night was dark, a storm came up and the rain streaked into the gaping tepee. We were drenched by morning, but quickly dried ourselves before the great fire built by Mrs. Pierre.

Pouce Coupe prairie is a beautiful little tract containing about two hundred square miles. Both the G.T.P. and C.P. surveys parties have drawn lines across it on the way to the Pine Pass. It was badly burned over last summer and it will be several seasons before the grass recovers as the sod has been burned right off in places.

Before the fire, it was told, the grass was knee high in June. It is without doubt an extraordinary favored little district. All the streams run into the coulees. They are apt to dry up at the end of the season.

One day as we were quietly trotting over the tender green grass which had sprung up since the fire, we saw a big brown bear quietly browsing in a little poplar bluff. We only had one twenty-two rifle in the party and that had been used up the day before. One of the horses stopped on it. Bruin was not more than twenty-five yards from us. He raised his head quietly looked us over and went on with his meal.

Michel crept up as close as possible and plugged him with his little pop-gum. Then with a series of wild yells the four of us bore down on him and he was soon at the order of his going but took to the prairie. It was a glorious chase. I had no idea a bear could travel so fast. They cross their hind legs in a comic picture, and progress in a series of bounds. At the time my horse was so close I could almost have leapt over and dropped a stone on him, but I had no weapon of any kind, not even a rope.

In swerving suddenly, my stirrup broke and I promptly went off on my head, much to the amusement of Michel. When I managed to gather myself together and to catch my horse, the hunting party had disappeared over a hill. I called out and they shortly afterwards, and said that Mr. Bear had hidden himself in a poplar bluff and they were trying to beat him out. To make a long story short the chase occupied a good two hours. The unfortunate bear tried all the tricks he knew, he climbed trees, he hid himself in the thickets, undergrowth, he dashed into the bushes, he ran in circles.

Finally he gave up and burying his head between his paws waited for us to dispatch him. A bullet in the brain did it. When we came to skin him we found his hide riddled with the tiny bullet holes.

After this we lived on bear steaks and chops for a week and very good they were.

The final dash through the woods was very exciting. Michel was anxious to get out before dark and he set a tremendous pace. I was bringing up the rear with old Cy as usual and I had my troubles. Cy hadn't any idea of following the trail. He simply made straight for the trail of the horse and I had to keep him from running into the bushes. When his pack hit anything, something would give way, for if he lost sight of the horse ahead he lost his bearing altogether and travelled in a circle.

Finally we broke into a regular gallop through the bush. In the gathering darkness it required sharp work to keep him from running right out over the trail about the level of ones head. We made camp at Spirit River about eight o'clock and the next day started on our long journey home.

FEDERAL PARLIAMENT

Ottawa, Nov. 26.—After the routine proceedings in the House today, Mr. Borden asked the Premier if the position of the resignation of Mr. Hyman was the same as when Sir Wilfrid Laurier had last addressed the House. Sir Wilfrid said that he had not yet received any news from Mr. Hyman, but Mr. Hyman, who was in the south, in poor health, but he expected to hear from him in a very few days.

In answer to Mr. Foster, Mr. Fielding said that the public accounts would be ready for distribution in a few days, and he expected the budget to be delivered on Thursday.

Mr. Fielding (London) was surprised at the reference of Mr. Foster the other day to political morality. After what had taken place before the insurance commission he was astonished at this. He asked the House to compare the lofty dignity of Mr. Hyman who resigned his seat with the action of Mr. Foster. Would Mr. Foster resign? There was nothing about it in the London press, but it interested him with the majority having voted for Hyman. The city of London was not purchasable. "I ask," said Mr. Devlin, "whether Mr. Foster will resign? If so, let him do it." It was said that the Opposition was going to make it interesting for the Government. "Let them come on," said Mr. Devlin "we are ready for them."

Mr. Cockshutt (Bramford), Mr. Clement (Essex) and Boyce (Aigona) followed.

Mr. Boyce held the floor for a couple of hours, giving a good deal of his engineering experiences in Algoma and thrashing the old and oft-told story of the Minnie M. Mr. Osler (Toronto) delivered the Walker-Carling election records.

Mr. Johnston (Cape Breton) said that a wonderful discovery had been made and that was that Mr. Boyce had carried Algoma and that the member for Algoma was smarting under the feeling that his efforts in doing so, and also his work in the House were not fully appreciated by the Conservative party.

The House listened with patients to the story of what Mr. Boyce had accomplished.

Coming to the speech from the Throne, Mr. Johnston said that the expenditure by the present Government was well spent and the result was the prosperity witnessed from ocean to ocean. The leader of the opposition objected to the expenditure being so large, although he was a very apologetic and Mr. Foster, on the other hand, took strong exception to an expenditure of the cost of an elevator built in the city of St. John, N.B. Mr. Johnston wondered what the member for St. John had to say the objection of Mr. Foster for that expenditure. It was the only item he took exception to. What the Opposition wanted was the small expenditure on defects which existed years ago. The member did not want to return to those times.

Having disposed of Borden and Foster, Mr. Johnston turned to Mr. Osler who he said was roaming around a graveyard all afternoon and came to the House with his discoveries. It was not necessary for the Liberals to go body snatching. The evidence against the Conservatives was too fresh in the minds of the people, although Mr. Osler was eager to repeat. He (Johnston) would have to remind Mr. Osler of what took place in the election of 1896. During that contest the Conservative organizer in Ontario sent out a circular to the party workers which showed what kind of work they used to carry the elections. This circular asked the Conservative workers to have extra ballots printed so that the deputy returning officer could have them marked and for ballots, read out wrongly and in other ways.

Mr. Barker—What book are you reading from?

Mr. Johnston—From Hansard.

He went on to read to the effect that the Conservatives were to get control of both scrutinies. This was easy because the Liberals were short of men. They were to make it appear that they were not friendly with the deputies, and he could not tell Liberal ballots with those of the Conservatives with the result below the nail and the spoil ballots could be made good. The extra ballots were to be used after the scrutinies had gone home. The organization was to say that this work was to be carried on where the Liberals were strong. A few votes it was said, sometimes turned the election. With extra ballots the dead men's votes could be recorded.

Mr. Johnston said that was no grave yard story like Mr. Osler's. It was in 1896 he read the views of W. L. Maclean on the election in Toronto, and afterwards quoted from the evidence of W. L. Smith, South Ontario, who was a Conservative member of the Federal and the Ontario House, and who sat behind Mr. Foster when in the House, to show the bribery and corruption that prevailed in the Conservative ranks. It was so bad that Judge Osler had said, "It was the most glaring piece of corruption he had ever heard of."

Mr. Johnston next took up the Fielding election in Nova Scotia and narrated the fish combine story which was circulated by the Conservative organizer from Liverpool with the view of injuring Mr. Fielding's election. This story was a pure concoction to show how the Conservatives would not run a clean election, he quoted Dr. Weidner's statement as to why he would not stand for a constituency at the last general election.

Mr. Barker (of Hamilton) said that the Conservative literature referred to was not distributed by the party. It was prepared by an American.

Mr. Lake (Qu'Appelle) called the attention of the Government to once again to the lack of fuel in the Northwest Territories. He said that the Government sympathized with the position of affairs in the west. They were doing all that they could do bring about a settlement, and hoped for the best. If Mr. Lake would suggest anything to meet the trouble he would be glad to hear him.

Mr. Lake suggested that coal should be brought from Fernie, B.C., by the Government.

Mr. Lorne said that he intended making a statement regarding the strike, but would defer it until tomorrow. He had a telegram from Mr. King saying that he was up all night with the miners and the men, and he hoped to be able to wire tonight that the strike was over and that work would be resumed tomorrow. That was all that he would say tonight. He would make an official statement tomorrow.

Mr. Bergeron replied and Mr. Campbell (Centre) moved the adjournment of the debate.

During the debate Mr. Fisher stated that he was going to put an item in the "Times" for cold storage warehouses for agricultural products throughout the country.

TRADE WITH NEW ZEALAND

The initiative of developing trade relations between New Zealand and Canada is being taken by the former, and with the subsidized line of steamships, which now ply from Vancouver to Wellington and back to New Zealand ports, the activity of British imperial governments—used in the larger sense—in the Pacific is bound to grow, so that Canadian importance in the west will be a matter with which the United States will have to seriously reckon with. J. Graham Gow, the trade representative of the New Zealand government in Canada, is on a visit to Vancouver, and interviewed by a Free Press reporter he explained his mission, which appears to be to stimulate Canadian exports to New Zealand by furnishing local merchants and manufacturers with the requirements of his country and further, to gather information, which shall give New Zealanders in entering the Canadian market.

"The Canadian and New Zealand governments have subsidized the Alley line, each paying $50,000 a year," he said; "and a preferential tariff has been adopted between them. I am here to give you people particulars of my country, and also to give particulars to my government as to what we should export. Of course, the general policy is to foster trade under the flag and to buy from Canada rather than the United States, which we do largely at the present time."

The interviewer inquired what might be the staple articles of mutual commerce. "You require in the east," he said, "a certain amount of wool for cloth manufacturing. We cultivate wool and can supply it to you direct. Instead of your going to the London market again your supply of flax does not meet your demands, and this also we can send to you direct. There would be a saving in cost in the handling and your requirements could be met more expeditiously. Another article, which we can export to you advantageously is carilage varnishing and making imitation amber for pipes. There may also be an opening in western Canada for our frozen mutton and butter at certain seasons of the year."

"How can we take that, especially as we go in for dairying ourselves?" asked the reporter.

"In the winter your supply is short of the demand," was the reply. "As to meat, Australia is already coming in and, as ours is reckoned to be the third from a million in the London market, it should certainly find a ready market. Australia has a market, but we have not yet got sending to Canada yet, because our refrigerating machine has not been put in the vessels."

Mr. Gow next turned to the possibilities of Canadian export. "You can ship to us," he went on, "any amount of salmon, all sorts of agricultural implements, boots, pulp, and timber. Then we want you Canadians, when you have piled up your fortunes to come and see us. We have a remarkable country, which is the resort of tourists. It has been called the 'wonderland of the world,' with its geysers, hot springs, volcanic ranges, lakes and splendid natural beauties."

Having mentioned he had recently been to India, Australia and Japan, Mr. Gow was asked what he thought were Canada's prospects of commerce in the orient. He replied that he considered the Dominion had a greater future there than his own country. During the China boycott of American goods, Australia continued the trade with the colonial empire, but lately the United States has re-asserted its self. He however, thought the future was with Canada, whose prospects of commerce in Japan were exceptional.

"Japan being the ally of Great Britain," he pointed out, "would naturally favor Canada, whom she regards together with the United States, as her friends. Much advancement in trade would arise from this alliance, and I believe that I am right in saying that the United States and Canada quoted flour at the same rates, preference would be given to the Dominion. Japan has a large population and she is, as you know, very progressive. Japanese trade should be valuable."

The visitor who will be in the city some weeks, giving information concerning his own country and storing a stock of intelligence about Canada, will be pleased to see merchants and manufacturers of all descriptions hotel. He has already been in communication with W. J. Bulman, secretary of the local branch of Canadian manufacturers; and when he proceeds east, he will wait upon Sir Wilfrid Laurier and the Hon. Mr. Fisher. Mr. Gow, having visited the city a few years ago, is acquainted with some of the features of western Canada's amazing progress.

Orange Meat

THE WHOLEWHEAT

is a True Food and the Best Cereal Food

Wheat sugars are food—that turn into good, red blood and sturdy strength. Orange Meat contains over 45% of wheat sugars—far MORE than any other cereal. Orange Meat also supplies MORE phosphorus, MORE actual body and brain-building food, than any other cereal.

Note the testing apparatus, and analysis made by Dr. John Waddell, B.A., D.Sc., Ph.D., Professor of Chemistry at Queen's University. It proves that no other food is so good to build up health and keep one in health.

A satisfied mother in Newington says: "We have had Orange Meat in use in our family for over a year. I found it a great benefit to my baby, who was very delicate, and is now in perfect health."

Orange Meat is worth all, and MORE, than it costs. Yet to more quickly popularize it, we give valuable premiums to all who buy it. Every 15c package contains a coupon, good for valuable premiums. For premium list, write "Orange Meat, Kingston, Ont."

Orange Meat is sold by all grocers in 15c and 25c packages.
25c packages contain 2½ times the quantity of the 15c size.

Coming! Learn Dress-Making

In four days, or learn by mail in your spare time at home.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Sanders, of the Sanders' Dress-Cutting School, Stratford, Ont., Can., will visit this place on date given at the bottom of advertisement, and will show how you can learn to cut, fit and put together everything in dress-making. Course consists of eight lessons which are:

1st Lesson—How to take a correct measure. How to use the Elite Ladies' Tailor System to fit anyone.

By the time you are through with this lesson you will know as much about cutting as if you worked in a shop six months or a year, and gave from $5.00 to $25.00 a week. At the end of this lesson you test the perfect fit of system by making a waist for yourself or friend.

2nd Lesson—How to cut the different styles in shirt waists.

3rd Lesson—How to cut the different styles in lined waists, by draping, pleating, yokes, reverses, boleros, etc., which are all popular. Fitting and particulars to finishing.

4th Lesson—How to cut by drafts all kinds of yokes, berthas, collars, girdles and cuffs.

5th Lesson—How to cut different kinds of sleeves and put together.

6th Lesson—Everything about wraps.

7th Lesson—How to draft to cut shirts by measurement by using the rule of system only; any kind of skirt, no matter what style, can be more easily cut than by using patterns.

8th Lesson—Finishing shirts, cutting costs, etc.

For reasons why it is the best way to learn: (1) Because it costs no more than the making of one dress. (2) It only takes four days personally, or a couple of weeks by mail. (3) The whole family can learn from system and lessons you take home. (4) Because it has thirteen years experience in dress-cutting and teaching. Have taught over six thousand pupils and all were more than satisfied.

I guarantee to give $500 to any one who can't make a perfect fit after they are through—and you don't pay until you are through and are perfectly satisfied.

Don't forget to call on today. Farmers' daughters, and ladies who have been working at dressmaking, or apprentices, specially invited.

FROM DAY TO DAY

ANDREW-HARRIS NUPTIALS.

Marriage of an Esteemed "Old-Timer."

The fine old homestead of the Groat family has been the scene of many enjoyable festivities in the past, as a centre of hospitality in Edmonton, but it could not easily have surpassed the animated and pleasing scenes of yesterday afternoon on the occasion of the nuptials of Mr. Robt. Mackay Andrew, formerly of Wick, Scotland, one of the most popular and esteemed of Edmonton's citizens, and Miss Harriet May Harris, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Harris, of Chipman, formerly of Kent, England. The marriage was celebrated at the Groat homestead at the desire of Mr. Groat, because of the warm personal friendship existing between his family and the groom—a brother Scot—since the latter's arrival in Canada. The wedding was consequently the occasion of a very pleasing reunion of many of Edmonton's old-time residents.

As carriage after carriage drove up to the handsome portico of Mr. Groat's new residence, built on a picturesque bend of the Saskatchewan, the guests were received by Mr. and Mrs. Groat, assisted by their daughter, Miss Margaret Groat. Of the members of the family assembled to witness Mr. Andrew's marriage only Mr. Forbes and Mr. John Groat were unavoidably absent in the north.

Shortly after five o'clock the bridal march being played by Mr. Harper, the bridal party entered the drawing room, where the guests awaited. The groom was attended by Mr. George Groat, and the bride escorted by her father. Little Miss Marjorie Poucher made a winsome flower girl. Rev. Dr. McQueen was the officiating clergyman, having risen from a sick bed to perform the marriage ceremony for this "old timer" and friend.

The bridal couple stood during the brief ceremony under an archway decorated with ferns and bridal roses. The bride's fresh blonde beauty was heightened by an attractive gown of ciel blue bengaline silk with chiffoe ruchings on skirt and sleeves, trimmed with flounces of white chiffoe. Over the soft surplice folds of the bodice was a beautiful bodice garniture of seed pearls. A sash of ciel blue liberty satin completed a very attractive costume. The bridal bouquet was of white roses and maidenhair fern. The little flower girl was daintily frocked in white India silk with Val lace trimmings. Mrs. Harris, the mother of the bride, was gowned in black silk with black chiffoe trimmings; Mrs. Matthew Groat wore black silk voile over taffeta with black lace applique and gold ornaments. Miss Margaret Groat wore a pretty cream voile with Dutch yoke, lace bordered, and soft silk girdle.

After the marriage ceremony a delightful supper catered for by Dodge was served in the supper room, which had been decorated with the British and Scotch colors. The supper tables were effectively decorated with tall vases of crimson and white roses, with Scotch heather and ferns. Elsewhere the long dining room had been temporarily converted into a ball room, the polished floor being cleared of rugs and waxed and the fireplace prettily decorated with palms. The morning room and drawing room which are en suite with the dining room served as sitting-out rooms. Harper's orchestra, stationed in the hallway, played old Scotch airs throughout the supper and later contributed the music for the dance.

As it was to be an old-time wedding the dances consisted in large part of the enjoyable old dances, the quadrilles, the Highland schottische and a few fine old step "dances" that transport dancers and onlookers alike to a virile period when individual grace and spontaneous merriment, rather than languishing artificiality, prevailed—to the period when men had not to be coaxed to dances. As a consequence many of the older generation appeared among the dancers, and the "old-time wedding" was doubly enjoyable because of this.

The groom, shortly after supper and before the bridal couple left for Edmonton en route for a short honeymoon trip, complied with the request of his many old Scottish friends, dressed in the kilts and tartan of Mackay plaid and to the thrilling skirt of the pipes, he danced the Highland fling as it is said only Robert Andrew can dance it here. The delighted applause of over a hundred guests looking on evoked a brief return of Mr. Andrew with three of the wedding guests who danced the old dance with Highland Scotch fire and grace.

The proximity of St. Andrew's day and the groom's attachment to Scotland (being a native of Wick, Scotland) caused the wedding decorations, music and dances to partake largely of a Scotch flavor. All the members of the house party were at Mr. Groat's desire sprayed with rosettes of Mackenzie tartan ribbon, Mr. Groat being of the Mac-

Dancing continued until midnight when a late supper was served before the guests dispersed. Of the dresses worn by the guests at the marriage a few were: Mrs. McQueen, soft grey voile with white chiffon vest; Mrs. John A. McDougall, dark blue silk voile, with crease lace yoke and applique trimmings; Mrs. D. R. Fraser, black silk voile with applique trimmings and white chiffon vest; Mrs. Harry R. Smith, grey crepe de chine with white chiffon and Dresden trimmings; Mrs. John C. McDougall, pearl grey silk ensemble on princess with lace yoke; Miss Alice McDougall, a strikingly pretty gown of coral pink silk with Val lace insertions and Liberty silk sash; Miss Dickson (Strathcona), an attractive princess gown of soft red silk with white lace yoke; Mrs. Poncher, black Duchesse silk with white and gold applique and white lace yoke; Mrs. D. Brown, blue poplin with white lace trimmings;

A LADDER OF LIGHT.

Have you heard of St. Augustine's famous ladder on which he rose to the height and strength of his own individuality.

First Rung—I Am.

Second Rung—I Know.

Third Rung—I Ought.

Fourth Rung—I Will.

This is a great ladder. It reaches all the way from the flowers to the stars, and all the way from dust to deity. May are rising upon it. Put your foot on the first rung and make Tennyson's words your motto: "Man is Man and Master of His Destiny."

A CANADIAN IN LONDON.

To see Edmonton is to admire it—if one may parody the old saying! The London correspondent of the Manitoba Free Press writes in her letter of last week: "I went this afternoon to see Mrs. Everard Cotes (Sara Jeannette Duncan), who is established in a cosy little flat not very far from here. Mr. Cotes has returned from Simla and they have taken up their residence for some time in London. I found Mrs. Cotes most enthusiastic about Edmonton, and the west, which the yah visited this summer. Have you read her book, 'Set in Authority'? I think it is one of the most brilliant an exciting novels I have read for ages. The plot is well worked out, and the types with which she has sketched are delightful. I am perfectly certain that I know several of her London matrons."

The writer, who is a prominent member of the Canadian colony in London, has been for some time doing such good work, as Lally Bernard, a Toronto woman writer, also does. They interest English women in Canada and give them a correct view of the Dominion and life here. She is also the London representative of the Canadian Women's Press club, a portion of which visited Edmonton last summer. In this connection she writes—

"The annual meeting of the Society of Women Journalists took place early this week, and Mrs. Bennett Smith (Annie Swan) was elected president for the coming year. She is vastly interested in the subject of women migrating to the Canadian west, and I feel very happy at our having a real Imperialist as president. The subject of affiliation with the Canadian Women's Press club was brought up at the meeting, for there was nothing on the statutes of the society which provided for affiliation with other bodies. Both Australia and Canada were represented your humble servant having been entrusted with the honor of bringing Canada's wish for affiliation before the members. It is now referred to the council by the members, and we will have to draft a new rule to meet the requirements of the case. We are all hoping that Mrs. Hayes (Mary Markwell) of Winnipeg, will be in London for the annual dinner of the society in December."
